

Winners: The Best Parenting Advice in Six Words

By Kj Dell'Antonia, November 6, 2015

SWEETEST: Snuggle together as long as possible.

MOST CEREBRAL: Someday they'll grow a frontal lobe.

TRAGEDY = COMEDY + TIME AWARD: What doesn't kill you—tries to.

MOST IRONIC: Trump turned out O.K., didn't he?
Karma is defined as having teenagers.

BEST REMINDER: Forgive yourself and start again tomorrow.

MOST PRACTICAL: Baking soda conquers the diaper pail.

Buttered toast is better than nothing.

Just squirt some breastmilk on it. (“Possibly TMI, writes Larry, but I'm sure she knows of which she speaks.”)

MY FAVORITE:

You're gonna need a bigger wipe.

We do not negotiate with terrorists.

Pay attention, but not too much.

Today's crisis is tomorrow's funny story.

Words to live by for the weekend, and beyond.
